

Scandal Reforms Passed by House

Bring State Agencies Under Purchasing Act

Provides All State Contracts by Competitive Bidding

SPRINGFIELD (U)—The House today passed 167-0 Gov. William G. Stratton's Hodge scandal reform bills to extend the principle of competitive bidding and centralized purchasing to all state agencies.

Republican Majority Leader John W. Lewis Jr., Marshall, said in his opinion "the Hodge scandal would never have happened" if Illinois had had such a law.

But Rep. John K. Morris (D-Chadwick) disputed whether the bills were really part of Stratton's program although he had recommended them in his inaugural message. Morris said Stratton had vetoed such legislation only last session.

The bills create a state purchasing commission and bring all state agencies which receive state appropriations under an Illinois Purchasing Act.

Approve Salary Bills

The act provides that all contracts or purchases in excess of $500 must be handled through competitive bidding.

The House approved and sent to the Senate a bill to increase according to population the salaries of court reporters in circuit, county and city courts. For example, in circuits of 225,000 or more population and in cities of 50,000 or more, reporters would be raised from $4,800 a year to $5,300 a year.

The House also approved and sent to the Senate a bill to raise from $9,000 to $12,000 a year the maximum salaries that could be paid to Chicago Municipal Court referees. The measure would be subject to a referendum.

The Senate confirmed Gov. William G. Stratton's appointment of William Feigenbutz, Chicago, to the Illinois Athletic Commission and the reappointment of Louis R. Radzienda, Chicago, to the commission.

The Senate Executive committee, meanwhile, delayed for one week its consideration of the governor's Hodge scandal reform proposal for an auditor general to be appointed by the governor.

Delay License Vote

This measure is expected to run into heavy opposition unless a compromise is reached with legislators who want an auditor-general rather than an elected auditor—but want him appointed by and responsible to the Legislature.

The full Senate delayed a vote on bills to increase the charge for fishing license from $1 to $2 a year, and for hunting licenses to $3 a year. The additional dollar in each case would be used to match federal funds for fish and wildlife programs.

Sympathetic Neighbors Aid Two Young Brothers Who Killed Father

ARLINGTON, Va. (U)—Sympathetic neighbors collected toys and organized a defense today for two young brothers who confessed they shot down their father TV-style and stuffed his body in a shed.

The two boys, 13-year-old Frank Dodd Jr. and 11-year-old James Dodd, were held at a juvenile shelter in this Washington suburb.

Police said the motherless boys confessed they murdered their middle-aged father, Frank Dodd Sr., with a .22-caliber rifle Jan. 24 while he dozed in a chair. They said he beat them.

They told police they learned how to kill their father and dispose of his body from a television program.

Neighbors said they were collecting toys to send to the boys "to make things a little more pleasant" for them at the juvenile shelter while authorities debated whether they can be tried for murder.

Neighbors called the boys "shy" and "well behaved." They said they generally "kept to themselves." Some said the boys' 52-year-old construction worker father was continually beating and scolding them.

However, one woman who lives nearby the Dodds' white cottage home said the slain father "did his best to raise" the boys.

"I guess he was just too broken hearted after his wife died to do a good job," she said.

Throw Luggage Away

12 Airmen Parachute Safely in Their First Jump from Crippled Plane

COLUMBIA S. C. (U)—Twelve survivors of maiden parachute jumps refused to worry today about throwing away all their luggage in a futile attempt to save a $561,000 C-119 Flying Boxcar.

"I guess our gear is scattered over quite a few miles," said Capt. Franklin Greenspan, of Rantoul, Ill., pilot and commander on the flight from Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., to Charleston AFB, S. C.

Greenspan said crew members and passengers dumped 1,000 pounds of personal luggage in their attempt to keep the plane from losing altitude after one of the two engines conked out during a rain Monday night.

"But we kept losing altitude at 1,000 feet a minute, and I gave the order to begin bailing out at 6,000 feet," he said. "This was the first time I had ever bailed out in 14 years of flying."

"In fact, none of us had ever jumped before."

Greenspan said the three other crew members and eight airman passengers jumped in perfect order and none was hurt. They were confined to the Ft. Jackson, S. C., base hospital for observation, however.

The plane crashed in a wooded area south of the Columbia Municipal Airport. A board of Air Force officers roped off the area to keep crowds away until investigators could seek the cause of the engine failure.

"I can't honestly answer that I was the last one out," Greenspan said. "I took the forward escape hatch and most of the others went out of the aft hatch."

"I saw the ground about two seconds before I hit. Some trees were coming up at me so I covered my face. The wind was knocked out of me a little but otherwise I felt fine," he said.

Airman 2-c Herschel R. Peach, 515 West 5th St., Mount Carmel, Ill., student crew chief, was one of the 12 airmen who parachuted from the plane.

Attacked by AFL-CIO

Beck Pressured to Return Home To Face Senate Investigators

WASHINGTON (U)—The Eisenhower administration put pressure on Teamster Union chief Dave Beck today to hurry home and be investigated.

The move came as Beck was subjected to bitter attack by AFL-CIO Vice President James B. Carey, who called him "a traitor to the labor movement."

Carey, at a press conference in Chicago Monday night, said if Beck's Teamsters "don't mend their ways they're in danger of expulsion" from the parent AFL-CIO.

Hearings Resume Today

"One corrupt international — or even one corrupt local — is one too many," Carey declared.

The Teamsters union has been linked with gambling, vice and political influence in Oregon in testimony before the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee. Hearings resume this afternoon.

The administration's nudge to Beck came from Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell. He announced Monday night that Beck, now in Europe, will not be named to the U. S. delegation to an international labor conference in Germany.

Mitchell noted pointedly that Beck, wanted by the Senate investigators for questioning, gave his prospective attendance at the conference next week as one reason for not rushing home to testify.

Mitchell's Action Praised
Therefore, said the secretary, "I have decided not to nominate Mr. Beck as a member of the U. S. delegation" to the conference.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.), a committee member, praised Mitchell for a "cooperative attitude." Mundt said he thinks the move will "bring to a head" the question of whether Beck will show up soon for quizzing.

The rackets committee has been trying for some time to get Beck to testify concerning his personal finances and charges of vice and racket deals involving his biggest-in-the-nation union.

AFL-CIO President George Meany, who nominated Beck to attend the labor conference in Germany before the current Senate inquiry was launched, said he was "not surprised" at Mitchell's action.

Meany told reporters he will try to find a substitute for Beck, but may not be able to obtain the necessary security clearance before the conference in Hamburg, Germany, next week.

Village Mayor

Hopes Sale of Liquor at Muddy, if Voted, Will Halt Economic Decline

By SAM HANCOCK

United Press Staff Correspondent
MUDDY, Ill. (U)—Some observers say this unique village of 150 people may become the "oasis" of dry Saline County in a local option election April 16.

John Molinarolo, 53, mayor and owner of the 60 houses in the village, thinks approval of the issue would halt the economic decline of the tiny hamlet.

Most of Saline County has been dry since 1943. And sale of liquor throughout the county is now prohibited.

Molinarolo was unopposed as mayor when the village voted to incorporate Dec. 12, 1955. He and his slate are unopposed again this year.

Muddy is unique in more ways than one. It has no local taxes. The only income is from motor fuel taxes and road and bridge allotments. Village officers serve without pay.

Molinarolo virtually owns the 120-acre village located in the geographic center of Saline County.

Has One Industry

In 1944 he bought 45 company houses from the Sahara Coal Co. to go with 15 he already owned.

The mayor has operated the only grocery within the village limits for 33 years. His son, John Jr., 31, operates the village's only industry, a small concrete block plant. The family also owns the Venice Club, which it rents out to private parties.

The Molinarolos are non-committal on chances of the local option issue passing. The chances seem good. The village has an estimated 60 to 70 registered voters, and 51 of them signed petitions asking for the "wet-dry" vote. "More would have signed it, but some were out of town," said Molinarolo.

Muddy went into an economic tailspin about 10 years ago following closure of two coal mines that

Annual School Board Elections Saturday, Apr. 13

Gardner Lists Deadline Dates For County Votes

Annual school board elections are coming up next month with members to be elected to fifteen boards of education and a number of boards of directors Saturday, April 13.

First day to file for the seven members boards was Feb. 27. Last day to file will be March 23 and last day to withdraw will be March 29.

Members of boards of education will be elected for Harrisburg, Eldorado, Carrier Mills and Galatia high schools, and the following grade school districts: Harrisburg, Dorrisville, Eldorado, Beulah Heights, Carrier Mills, Raleigh, Galatia, Brushy Cottage Grove, Colbert and Independence.

A member of the three-member boards of directors for rural schools will be named but there will be no names on ballots — strictly write-in affairs.

On March 30, Mr. Gardner continued. School Districts 61, 65, 70 and 99, all near Eldorado, which voted to consolidate a couple of weeks ago, will elect a complete school board. However, since this board will not take over until July 1, all four districts must elect school directors April 13 to serve until that time.

April 3, he stated, will be the last day to publish notices of elections for both boards of directors and boards of education, and April 3 will be the last day to have ballots available for boards of education elections.

April 10 will be the last day to apply in person to vote absentee with the clerk of the board and April 8 will be the last day to apply by mail for an absentee ballot.

With the filing deadline nearly three weeks off, the lineups of candidates seeking election is still very incomplete.

Reject Call for Probe

SPRINGFIELD (U)—The Senate Executive Committee today rejected a resolution for a legislative investigation of alleged lack of cooperation by various law agencies in the Grimes murder case.

Bowling Alley is Officially Opened

The Harrisburg Bowl, a modern bowling alley, was opened officially last night in the Frank P. Parker building at Church street and Route 45.

Ross Cotton, who with his brother, Neil, is a co-owner of the alley, said all alleys will be in operation tonight with modern, automatic pinspotters. Fibre glass settees, which have been ordered, have not yet arrived.

The new Bowl is spacious, with eight shining alleys.

Mr. Cotton said the alleys will be open every day and night, except that on Sunday they will not open until 1 p. m. There will be free instruction available through the week, he added.

He also said that league play is being planned for next week, that both men and women who desire to participate should contact one of the owners at the Bowl or call 436-R.

Negro Leader Urges Nixon to Investigate Racial Issue in South

Rev. King Meets Vice President On African Tour

ACCRA, Gold Coast (U)—An American Negro leader met Vice President Richard M. Nixon in this African city today and urged him to make a first-hand investigation of the racial situation in southern United States.

The appeal was made by the Rev. Martin Luther King, leader of the bus boycott in Montgomery, Ala. Nixon and King met unexpectedly at a convocation of Accra University College where the vice president presented an American scholarship to the only higher educational institute in this corner of the "Dark Continent."

Both Nixon and King are official guests to the independence day celebrations transforming this British Gold Coast colony into the free nation of Ghana. Nixon is here as the representative of the United States while King was invited as a leader of American Negroes. King told newsmen he wanted Nixon to see conditions first hand in the South and make a personal report to President Eisenhower. Nixon skipped the afternoon's official functions to make a three-hour safari into the bush country, inland from Accra. Nixon and his wife, Pat, rode into the native village of Aburi for a look at African rural life.

The Wilbur de Paris jazz combo, which plays American jazz New Orleans style, stole the show from the visiting dignitaries Monday night.

The audience, dressed in everything from western-style business suits to brilliant native robes and headresses, exploded into a riot of color and action when de Paris broke into his first number — "Muskrat Ramble."

This applies to those persons having received surplus commodities in the past or who expect to receive the commodities this month for the first time, Mr. Ferrell declared.

He stated a new budget had been prepared by the Illinois Public Aid Commission for Federal surplus commodities and a complete new registration was required.

Many new applications have already been made, Mr. Ferrell said, but added that several had failed to re-apply.

Rosiclar Woman Dies

Brose Phillips Urges Improvements In Taxing Program in Rotary Address

School finances could be greatly helped by a revision of the taxing program, members of the Rotary club were told at Monday's meeting.

Brose Phillips, principal of the Dorrisville grade school, spoke of several improvements that could be made in the collecting of tax. Mr. Phillips said that the bond revenue power of the schools is cut down when properties in the school districts are assessed less than their true value. His opinion was that tax assessors should be chosen on their ability and education. They should be provided with a tax schedule listing all the different properties, including the often overlooked intangibles. This schedule would be given to the taxpayer and he would check off the things that he has.

Mr. Phillips spoke of the increasing of federal aid to the schools in the last few years. He said that in 1947 $82,000,000 was given to the schools of Illinois by the federal government, compared with the 1955 total of $235,000,000 in federal aid. If this trend continues in a few years the federal government will be entirely supporting the schools, unless the state government supplies more revenue.

Mr. Phillips said that this increased revenue could come from more sales tax, higher property tax, or a state income tax. But much of this revenue could come from a more uniform assessment of property.

In regards to the amount of support given to its schools, he stated that Illinois ranks 33th in the nation.

In closing Mr. Phillips listed these recommendations: more uniform assessments, by assessors chosen by higher standards; the use of tax schedules, and the right of schools and similar organizations to appeal before the board of appeals.

Former High Truman Officials Get Two Years

Each Fined $2,500 By Federal Judge; New Trial Rejected

ST. LOUIS (U)—Two high Truman administration officials were sentenced today to serve two years in prison and fined $2,500 each for conspiracy to fix a tax case.

Federal Judge Gunnar Nordby of Minneapolis sentenced Matthew J. Connelly, White House appointments secretary to former President Truman, and T. Lamar Caudle, onetime head of the Justice Department's tax division, after turning down motions for a new trial.

The motions included one filed only late Monday contending that trial judge Ruben M. Hulien was not mentally or physically able to have presided over the drawn-out trial.

Nordby was assigned the case after Hulien died last July, less than one month after the trial, of a self-inflicted bullet wound.

Nordby told the defendants the verdict of the jury "connotes a grave breach of trust" by the former officials.

Freed Pending Appeal
Connelly, now a New York public relations consultant, and Caudle, a Wadesboro, N. C., attorney, were freed on bond pending an appeal which defense attorneys said would be filed as soon as possible.

Nordby, in imposing sentence, said that "men in high places must recognize they must face the punishment for any misdeeds."

Asst. Atty. Gen. Warren Olney III argued against the granting of the latest appeal for a new trial on the grounds that Hulien's reported remarks after the trial showed compassion but were not an indication that Hulien felt the defendants were not duly charged.

Nordby commented on the motions that the defense was asking him to speculate on what Hulien had in mind. He said the statements attributed to Hulien were "out of context" and not sufficient cause for a new trial.

The court said an examination of the records indicated Hulien was in full possession of all his faculties during the hearing.

The latest motions were accompanied by affidavits from Dr. William Kuntz, gerontologist and personal friend of Hulien, and Dr. James Haddock, a psychiatrist.

Kuntz' affidavit said that six days before Hulien's death last July, the jurist "made a statement to me that Connelly was a glad-hander and a greeter, and did nothing more than I would have done in his situation."

The affidavit by Haddock said he had been treating the late jurist for some time. He quoted Hulien as saying after the trial that "I have these two poor devils on my hands to deal with."

Haddock said he suggested shock therapy for Hulien's "severe melancholia," but the judge refused for fear it would damage his mind. Caudle and Connelly were convicted of conspiring with Harry L. Schwimmer, an attorney, to allow Irving Sachs, a St. Louis shoe broker, to escape a prison term for tax evasion.

The government charged that Schwimmer, on behalf of Sachs, gave Connelly and Caudle oil royalties in 1951. Connelly contended he bought the royalty as an investment. Caudle said he gave his royalty back to Schwimmer as soon as he learned about it.

Schwimmer, named as a co-defendant in the case, is in a New York sanitarium. Sachs pleaded guilty in 1951 to tax evasion charges and was fined $40,000.

A Lurid Tale

Editorial By Bruce Blossat
Though its inquiry may run a year or two, the special Senate committee investigating labor and management practices already has turned up some astonishing evidence of questionable activities carried on by officials of the big teamsters' union.

Several officers of the organization have declined to cooperate with the investigators. But those who have given reasonably full information have contributed to a shocking picture.

Testimony to date indicates a positive link between the teamsters and the underworld in the Pacific Northwest. The union, in league with racketeers and gamblers, sought to seize control of the Portland, Ore., city government. The combination did succeed in dominating law enforcement in Multnomah County, site of Portland.

There was substantial evidence of the misuse of union funds. Some went for gambling and other underworld enterprises. A good sum of money was used to finance bars, including $30,000 to help out a friend of the son of Dave Beck, teamster boss.

After the first damaging testimony, the brother of a witness declared he was warned in an anonymous telephone call against letting his brother talk too much. The witness said he had been threatened with death.

But, obviously, the story is going to be told, from Dave Beck on down, and from coast to coast.

Other unions also face scrutiny. We must hope their story is less lurid than the teamsters' tale.

There is one important difference between the Senate's current inquiry and the broader and perhaps more exhaustive study of labor unions made by Congress in 1947 as a prelude to the Taft-Hartley act. The top labor federation leaders are in support of the investigation's purposes. They are ranged on the side of law against corrupt or dubious practices of any kind.

In 1947 their attitude too often seemed to be that unions could do no wrong, or, at any rate, the unions themselves were best qualified to correct any wrongs without the help of federal law.

Today they appear to accept the notion that the great unions, like the great corporations, are affected with a public interest. They must be responsibly managed and carefully controlled to assure that that interest is kept constantly in sight.

Little but trouble likely awaits those in union management who have let personal self-interest or downright corruption distort labor's earnest purposes.

Staying Up to Date

They always like to remind us that the U. S. Constitution is a very flexible document that has shown its great merit by proving adaptable to the 20th century. Somebody might put in a few good words for the White House on the same score.

The old shell is still the same, but there have been a lot of changes around the premises through the years.

Back around the turn of the century they put an elevator in. Franklin D. Roosevelt had a basement swimming pool and a modern kitchen installed.

Harry Truman, over some protest, fixed up an upstairs balcony on the south portico. And during Mr. Truman's regime the whole interior was ripped out and rebuilt to eliminate the hazard of shaking chandeliers.

In President Eisenhower's time the White House lawn has become a practice golf course, and now there's talk it may be used also as a heliport. If the flying windmills land there and take off without trouble, he soon may be saving time to and from Washington's airport.

The White House seems to be keeping up with the times.

"It'll Never Get Off the Ground"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Senator McClellan Isn't Telling All In Racket Probe; Young District Attorney Of Portland Ore., Appears To Be Victim; He Was Rough On Underworld Leader.

WASHINGTON.—There is more than meets the eye behind the sensational parade of narcotics addicts, underworld characters, petty gamblers, and madams that Sen. McClellan of Arkansas has brought before his committee during his probe of the Teamsters.

One of the most interesting, and on the surface inexplicable features is tape recordings of alleged conversations linking the district attorney of Portland, Ore., William Langley, to alleged Teamster representatives, plus testimony that Langley took contributions from Big Jim Elkins, convicted narcotics smuggler and user.

Langley is a Democrat. He comes from a family of Democrats who were Democrats when it wasn't too profitable to be a Democrat in Oregon. His father before him was district attorney. Both had excellent reputations, both were considered somewhat anti-labor. Labor, with one exception, never supported them.

I happen to have known the Langley family dating back about 30 years. The story of young Langley's having accepted money and having conspired with petty cardroom operators and Teamster errand boys sounded fishy to me. I went to him. Here is his side of the case, a story which I believe to be true.

TEAMSTERS SWITCH

Young Langley's opponent for district attorney, John McCourt, was a liberal Republican who had been strong for labor, had always received labor support. Langley had not. But toward the end of his last election race in October 1954, the Teamsters phoned his father to say that they had discovered McCourt was backed by Big Jim Elkins, the leader of the gambling world, so they were coming out for Langley. They did. However, the noise the Teamsters made for Langley in those last two weeks probably did not overcome their previous 25 years of opposition.

Langley says he accepted no money from the Teamsters, but they did spend some money on his behalf and handed out literature for him. What really won him the election was his promise to solve the murder of a teen-age baby sitter by a Chinese and his white wife. He solved it and secured a conviction by getting Tom Maloney, who has figured in the Senate hearings and taken the 5th amendment, to go to China town and dig up a key witness. Maloney was a sort of poolroom hanger-on and errand boy for Frank Brewster of the Teamsters. And Langley used him to get information on the underworld, including houses of prostitution. That was why he paid Maloney and why it was easy to record telephone conversations with him. Maloney in turn was using a character named Leo Plotkin, who sold lingerie and cheap jewelry to the sporting girls in Portland brothels, to get information for Langley.

LANGLEY'S LETTERS

Using this information, Langley wrote about a dozen letters to Police Chief James Purcell demanding that the houses be closed. Here is one of his letters: "Dear Chief Purcell: "I am advised that prostitution is being carried on in the city of Portland at the following locations:

"Atlas Rooms, N. W. 6th Avenue; Model Rooms, N. W. 6th Avenue; Seranac Rooms, N. W. 6th Avenue; Villa Rooms, 9 N. W. 3rd Avenue; Bellevue Hotel, 308 S. W. 12th Avenue; Roseway Rooms, 231 S. W. Washington St.; Clare Hotel, 314 W. Burnside St.; Property at 170 S. W. Morrison St.; Property at 3107 N. E. Rodney Ave.; Property at 4929 S. E. Hawthorne Blvd.; Property known as Zenith Rooms.

"Please cause these houses of prostitution to be permanently closed.

"I suggest their closure be effectively accomplished by placing a uniformed policeman in front of each location.

"Houses of prostitution are nests of law violators. My program of law enforcement will not permit such conditions to exist."

Langley tells me that Police Chief Purcell asked him not to write any more letters. He wanted the information by telephone. Langley refused. Purcell had been put in office with the backing of Big Jim Elkins and his friend, City Councilman Stanley Earl.

Langley had gone to Gov. Paul Patterson of Oregon, a Republican, who originally advised him to send the information to the police in writing, not by phone. That way, the Republican governor advised the Democratic district attorney, the police chief had to act.

As a result of these letters, a lot of Big Jim's joints were closed down, and he started a campaign to "get" Langley. He begged his telephone.

PHONY RECORDINGS

One Sunday morning in July 1955, Big Jim Elkins came to Langley's home with a sheaf of letters from Police Chief Purcell and demanded that Langley stop writing them. Langley said he planned to keep on writing and told Elkins to leave.

Three months later he came back with a typewritten transcript of Langley's alleged conversations and said: "It will cost you $10,000 to get the tape recordings of those conversations."

Next day, Monday, Big Jim came when Langley was not at home. He entered the house despite Mrs. Langley's protest and started to play the tape recordings. "I'll leave these here for $10,000," he said. Mrs. Langley fled the house, took refuge in the house of a neighbor.

Later the recordings were printed in the Portland Oregonian and won a journalistic prize. They put Langley in the position of conspiring with Maloney and McLaughlin to conduct underworld operations. Langley claims they are doctored, and he has evidence to prove it. Nevertheless, he was indicted last summer for conspiracy to commit malfeasance. He has not yet been tried and for that reason may plead the 5th amendment if called as a Senate witness.

It is, of course, quite easy to doctor tape recordings. Any sound engineer at a radio station can show you how it can be done, which is why the Supreme Court will not permit them to be used in evidence.

This is a small part of the complicated Teamsters investigation testimony before the Senate that the public isn't getting.

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Bonanza told a divorce court Thursday that she knew her marriage was cracking up when she found out that her husband, Ralph, had carried 15 dozen eggs in a garbage pail to the home of "another woman."

The 1955 rise in coal exports emphasizes that 80 per cent of all coal shipped from tidewater ports for New England and overseas leaves from Hampton Roads, Va.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear mother, grandmother and wife, Nellie M. Bradley, who left us 3 years ago March 5, 1954, at the age of 59 years. Mother has fallen asleep. Mother was tired and weary. Weary with toil and pain. She put away her work and glasses. She does not need them again. Into heaven's mansions she has gone.

Never to sigh or to weep. After years with life and struggles. Mother has fallen asleep. On a hillside we have laid her. In the Silent City to lie. And although our hearts are broken.

We would not question why. She has taken her last journey. On a beautiful ship called rest. Away from this world of sorrow. To the land of rest. Our grief is in silence. For the one we loved so well. And put upon her grave. Flowers that we still remember her.

Sadly missed by her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Huston, and grandson, Henry Joe Jr., and her husband Bill Bradley and children. *209-1

Card of Thanks

PERKINS—The Perkins family wishes to thank friends and relatives and especially their neighbors for the kind expressions of sympathy, beautiful floral offerings and special deeds of friendship. They especially thank the Rev. Clayton Humphrey, Rev. Roy Jennings, and Dr. G. B. Hart, the singers and the pallbearers. All that was said and done is sincerely appreciated.

Menard Prison Paper Added to Editorial Ass'n

MENARD, Ill. — The Southern Illinois Editorial Assn. has demonstrated that journalistic ties can span prison walls by adding the Menard Time, published by the inmates of the Illinois State Prison, to its membership lists.

The association announced Monday that the 24-year-old weekly tabloid has been admitted to the organization. It was believed to be the first time that a prison newspaper had entered a publishers' association.

The Time has a circulation of 6,120—larger than many of the regular weeklies in the association—and sends 4,365 copies to persons outside the prison.

The mailing list includes governors, college professors, judges, prison officials and "alumni" of the prison.

The paper's staff is composed of graduates of a prison journalism course taught by Charles C. Clay-

Jackie Gleason Tossed Out of Stork Club

NEW YORK — Comedian Jackie Gleason said today he was tossed quietly out of the Stork Club Monday night before he ever sat down.

"I don't know what he had against me," Gleason said of the night-club's owner, Sherman Billingsley, "unless it's because I belong to the musicians union." The union is involved in a labor dispute with the nightclub.

Billingsley had been quoted as saying Gleason was asked to leave because he became boisterous and obscene. The hefty comic was said to have put up a tussle before his ejection.

Stress Public Aid No 'Inalienable Right,' Chicago Welfare Chief Says

SPRINGFIELD — Chicago's public welfare chief told a legislative investigating committee the best solution to cutting public aid costs would be to stop persons from thinking relief is an "inalienable right" in an increasingly "welfare state."

Allen E. Rose, Chicago public welfare commissioner, told the committee Monday that the big factor in soaring relief rolls and costs was not fraud, migration or slipshod administration, but rather a "state of mind" that relief is an "inalienable right" in a "paternalistic" state.

He said public relief workers have to spend "hours and hours convincing people that we are not a TV station with a giveaway program."

Rose urged the committee to write into the relief laws a provision that relief recipients have a "moral obligation" to repay the aid they get when possible.

He said it is becoming "popular to go in and get your share" and that the laws should be changed to encourage persons to return to the old idea of "taking care of their own" relatives.

Asks Combined Program
He said relief recipients should be required to work for their aid on public works projects until they get private employment.

He also suggested savings could be made in the relief program by putting all categories of relief under one program, instead of the present five, which include general relief, aid to dependent children, blind assistance, old age assistance and disability assistance.

This would reduce administrative costs, he said, and also make more clear to people that relief was emergency aid and not something that was a right.

The committee was formed after the Public Aid Commission got a 30-million-dollar deficiency appropriation to pay its bills through June and asked a 367-million-dollar appropriation for the coming two years.

The committee, which will report to the Legislature before the appropriation request is acted on, hired C. F. Strodel and Associates, Chicago, for $5,000 to conduct an analysis of the public aid program.

Meanwhile, the Senate Public Welfare Committee recommended passage of a bill to raise from one year to three years the residence-in-Illinois requirement for receiving public aid.

Israel Decision Praised by Dulles; Sees Mid East Stability

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today hailed Israel's decision to withdraw troops from the Gaza and Aqaba areas as a move toward a "more stable, more tranquil" Middle East.

Dulles also said Egypt appears to have been dragging its feet on reopening the Suez Canal until it was assured Israeli troops actually would pull out of the Gaza and Aqaba areas.

He said he hopes the Egyptian foot-dragging will end.

Dulles declined to say how soon he expects the last Israeli soldier to be out of Egypt. But he said information available to him shows Israel is undertaking a reasonably expeditious withdrawal.

He said he believes the Suez Canal can be reopened to shipping in about 10 days if clearance work is now pressed vigorously.

Dulles opened his weekly news conference with a prepared statement.

"We believe... that the decision will prove to have been a wise one from the standpoint not only of Israel but of all the nations concerned," Dulles said.

"It should, as President Eisenhower said, make it possible to bring about conditions in the area more stable, more tranquil, and more conducive to the general welfare than those which existed heretofore."

Dulles added that "once again it has been demonstrated that free world nations have a decent respect for the opinions of mankind."

Dulles said the United States has no reason to believe that there will be any discrimination against Israel, British or French ships which try to go through the Suez Canal once it is opened.

As for the Straits of Tiran which lie between Egypt and Saudi Arabia and lead into the Gulf of Aqaba, Dulles said he believes Egypt has no right to close the straits to any vessel.

Dulles also:—Said the United States is satisfied that British nuclear tests at Christmas Island in the Pacific will not endanger the Hawaiian Islands.

—Disclosed that the administration is searching for a way to let reporters go to Red China without dropping an overall U. S. ban against American travel on the Communist Chinese mainland. So far, a formula has not been worked out.

—Said the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization nations are concerned about Indonesia which is dropping Western-style democracy in favor of a "guided democracy." But so far, he said, he does not think the concern is tinged by fear that the area will fall under Communist domination.

Quade Elected Lt. Governor of Dist. Key Clubs

Eddie Quade, president-elect of the HTHS Key club, was elected to the post of lieutenant governor of Division Ten of the Illinois Eastern Iowa district at a district convention held at Springfield, March 1 and 3. Quade will take office July 1, succeeding Charles Anderson of Marion. Quade's duties will be to assist the district governor in promoting district cooperation and establishing and aiding new Key Clubs.

Bill Bottomley, HTHS Key club president, was the other delegate at the convention from Harrisburg. Because Bottomley is a senior, he was ineligible for district office.

Each year at the district convention, two officers are elected to serve the Illinois Eastern Iowa district. Lieutenant governors are also elected for each of the ten divisions.

John Schork, HTHS English and vocal teacher, is sponsor of the Key club.

Child Chokes to Death on Aspirin

WINSLOW, Ill. (AP)—A 20-month-old daughter of a rural couple near here choked to death on an aspirin given her to relieve a cold.

Janet K. Wild, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Wild, was rushed to a physician's office in Freeport Monday but efforts to revive her were futile.

Lung Expert Dies of Cancer

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Dr. Everts A. Graham, who touched off a medical controversy by suggesting a possible link between cigarettes and lung cancer, has died at the age of 73 of lung cancer.

Graham died late Monday at Barnes Hospital where he served 32 years as chief surgeon.

Graham first suggested a possible connection between cigarettes and lung cancer in a speech before the Inter-American Congress of Surgeons at Chicago.

Four years later, Graham and two associates reported in a medical publication that two years of laboratory research on the subject showed "positive evidence" that cancer could be produced by cigarette tars.

Graham was a moderate smoker himself for many years, but gave up tobacco six years ago. Graham was the first surgeon to successfully remove a human lung and was credited with the development of an X-ray test for gall bladder disease.

He retired in 1951 from active practice as a surgeon and as head of the surgery department of the Washington University School of Medicine here.

Graham's first successful lobectomy was performed April 5, 1933, on Dr. Robert Gilmore, a Pittsburgh, Pa., obstetrician who was suffering from lung cancer. Gilmore recovered and resumed his practice.

Continue Jury Selection for Trial at Marion

MARION, Ill. (AP)—Selection of a second panel of four jurors began here this morning for the murder trial of Mrs. Ouida Cannon, 30, who is charged with slaying her husband.

Raymond Lee Cannon, 31, was slain with a shotgun as he slept last Aug. 31 at the family's rural home southwest of Marion.

Defense attorneys said they will contend Mrs. Cannon was temporarily insane at the time of the slaying.

The first panel of four jurors was seated Monday afternoon.

Eisenhower Urges More Drought Aid; Requires States to Help

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower asked Congress today to approve an expanded drought relief program with states required to pay 25 per cent of the cost. Under the President's program states also would be responsible for administering disaster relief to provide "necessary local guidance and supervision."

In a special message to Congress Mr. Eisenhower asked for authority to expand existing drought and other disaster relief programs. The President gave no estimate of the cost of the new program, either to the federal government or to the states.

Accompanying his message was a letter to the President from Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson proposing new drought and other disaster relief measures, based on the report of the special drought conference at Wichita, Kan., Jan. 14-16. The report also was included.

States Assume Share

Mr. Eisenhower "strongly" urged "prompt consideration and adoption" of Benson's legislative proposals.

He said he drew two particular conclusions from the report:

"... That administration of emergency disaster programs must be kept close to the local people."

"... That state and local governments should assume a greater part in alleviating human distress and hardship and in meeting other local needs in times of disaster, calling on the federal government only to supplement their own resources."

Benson's letter said federal legislation will be offered "requiring a minimum of 25 per cent state contribution in certain future emergency agricultural programs for disaster relief."

Such state participation would apply particularly to the government emergency feed grain and hay programs. Under these, the federal government now pays $7.50 a ton toward the cost of hay and $1.50 a hundred pounds toward the cost of feed grain for disaster-stricken farmers.

The states now pay 1 per cent or less of the cost of these relief programs. Benson pointed out that most state legislatures now are in session "so that needed state legislation could be considered."

Benson said the administration also will ask for legislation to extend for three years its authority to make special livestock loans in drought areas and to broaden the purposes for which such loans may be made. Repayments would be scheduled over a longer period than now authorized.

He said additional emergency funds will be sought for grasshopper control in areas where drought has increased the hazard from this pest.

Polio Victim Only Few Gasps from Death During Iron Lung Changes

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—A 24-year-old polio victim stayed a few gasps from death for eight hours Monday during a struggle between doctors and four successive iron lungs.

Three of the iron lungs proved faulty and Robert Thorne, kept alive by hand pumping, was "turning blue" when a brigade of rescuers finally got him and his borrowed lung safely to Baptist Hospital in a moving van.

"He's resting now," Thorne's father, William R. Thorne, said early today. "The doctor gave him a sedative so he would sleep. He is being fed through a tube in his nose to help him breathe."

Fought for Breath

For a polio victim paralyzed as badly as Thorne, one transfer is a dangerous ordeal. But Thorne had to be moved back into his own leaking lung each time a new one broke down, because his own lung was easier to pump by hand.

Each transfer, with Thorne fighting for breath, took two minutes. "Right at the last he began growing pale and turning blue," Thorne's father said. "He was extremely nervous, but he kept talking to us, telling us what he wanted."

The elder Thorne said he was told that doctors will not know for possibly a day or so how seriously the former Army depot clerk, a father of two children, was injured by the series of near suffocations.

"They would put him in a new lung, see that it wouldn't work, then put him back into the lung that he used at home," he said.

Had Police Escort

"They gave him I don't know how many tanks of oxygen before they took him to the hospital. And there were four squad cars that escorted the moving van to the hospital."

The moving van was the second one called. The first was too small. When the caravan finally rolled police had blocked off the entire route to the hospital.

But police could not help when the elevator also proved, so far as they could tell at first, to be too small for the lung.

"We practically had to stuff him

Bedwell, Freed in Grimes Case, Re-Arrested on Florida Charges

CHICAGO (AP)—Bennie (The Dishwasher) Bedwell, freed on charges of murdering two Chicago teen-agers, today faced charges of assaulting a 13-year-old girl in Florida.

Bedwell, 21, an illiterate Skid Row "ladies man," was freed Monday on charges of murdering Barbara Grimes, 15, and her sister, Patricia, 13.

However, Bedwell's plans for celebrating his release by returning to his home state of Tennessee for a hunting and fishing vacation were interrupted by Undersheriff Thomas Brennan.

Brennan confronted Bedwell with a fugitive warrant charging Bedwell with holding a 13-year-old girl prisoner for three days and raping her last March in Florida.

Sheriff Rodney B. Thursday said at Deland, Fla., that Bedwell was identified as a carnival worker who, with a friend, abducted two young girls last March 9. The girls were found three days later in a house trailer.

Bedwell was held in lieu of $100,000 bond. However, a Champaign, Ill., bondsman who put up $20,000 bond for Bedwell on the Grimes murder charges, said he would try to post bond for Bennie again.

Bedwell's attorney, who protested his client's re-arrest, said he would oppose any attempt to extradite the handsome youth. The case was continued until March 13.

Bedwell was charged with the Grimes killing when he confessed that he and a friend slugged the girls and then dumped them nude into a ditch to freeze. He later retracted the confession.

The girls disappeared from their home Dec. 28. Their bodies were found on the city's outskirts Jan. 22.

Authorities dropped charges against Bedwell in the Grimes slaying when medical evidence indicated his confession was false.

THE STORY: Chad Morgan and Joe Jagger, who built Pawnee City as a shipping point for Texas cattle, watch scores of people arrive as herds come into town. New businesses are being set up everywhere.

VIII

The man snatched the receipt from Jagger, and turned to walk briskly back toward the hotel.

"There he goes, looking for a quick turnover at a profit," chuckled Jagger.

"At the hotel," Morgan said bluntly, "are three bill collectors with bills totaling $18,000. One of them has a judgment."

Jagger, instead of being disconcerted, chuckled. "What good is a judgment going to do him? There's no sheriff here to serve it, no judge to make out a writ of attachment."

"We still owe the money." "Sure, sure. Well, I'm going right up the street and make a few thousand. Pillsbury's been wanting to buy some property from me."

"Wait, Joe! One thing more. Your sister's here." Delight spread over Jagger's face. "She wrote me that she was thinking about moving out here after we got going, but I didn't expect her so soon—" He turned abruptly away from Jagger and started running back toward the hotel.

A heavy-set man of about 50 headed toward Morgan. "Know where I can find Mr. Jagger?"

"He just passed you. I'm Chad Morgan, his partner."

The man brightened. "I understand you and Mr. Jagger own Pawnee City. I—well—I thought I'd kinda like to locate here. Open a little hardware store."

"You'll need more than one lot, then," Morgan said.

"I'll need about five lots."

"How about the corner over here? Give you an entrance on both sides. And plenty of room in back for wagons to drive in."

"I had in mind something like that." The man frowned. "How much for the five corner lots?"

"A hundred feet?" Morgan frowned. "Well, my partner just sold two lots for two thousand dollars..."

"All right, I'll take them. Ten thousand."

Morgan swallowed hard. "Uh, no. I meant Joe sold the two lots for two thousand... a thousand each."

"You're an honest man, Mr. Morgan." The corner lot buyer held out his hand. "My name's Buffington, Mr. Morgan."

"Chad!" called Joe Jagger from up the street. He was running toward Morgan and Buffington.

"Don't sell those corner lots. I got a buyer."

"It's too late," Morgan said. "I've just sold them to Mr. Buffington for a hardware store."

Joe Jagger came up, frowning. "How much?"

"Five thousand—for five lots."

"Pillsbury just offered me ten thousand for the three corner lots."

"The whiskey seller?" Morgan looked sharply at his partner.

He shrugged. "Pawnee City's big enough for two saloons." He looked at Buffington. "Care to re-sell your lots?"

Buffington promptly shook his head. "I'm satisfied with the deal."

Morgan said promptly, "I gave my word."

Jagger hesitated, averting his eyes from Morgan's. "I guess the town needs a good hardware store. I'll sell Pillsbury the corner across the street."

The cook for the laborers recruited an assistant or two and took care of some of the hungry ones that evening. Hastings, the cattle drover, accommodated the overflow and it was here that Chad Morgan found Helen Jagger shortly after dark. She was near the chuck wagon.

Morgan squatted down beside her. "Where's Joe?"

"Making money," said Helen. "He's been selling town lots all afternoon. I saw him an hour ago and he was talking to a man about opening a bank."

"A faro bank, or a regular bank?"

She almost choked over a mouthful of beans. "That's what Joe asked. It seems that a faro bank has a better chance of succeeding in Pawnee City."

She put down her plate on the ground beside her. "Everything I dreamed of back in St. Louis is coming true. We have a town and we're making money. We'll be rich. There's just one thing more to settle." She paused. "You're a handsome man, Chad. Hasn't any girl ever told you that?"

Morgan knew that his face was reddening and he was too far from the campfire for the heat to have done it. "I haven't had a great deal of time for that."

"We're all going to be pretty busy for some time," said Helen. "But there's no reason we shouldn't settle things right now. Women are going to be swarming into Pawnee City and I might as well put my brand on you right now."

Morgan put down his plate and stared at the fire a few yards away. Helen watched him. "I like a shy man because—because I'm not shy myself. Look, Chad, there's no reason for you to pick an outsider. And I don't want any of our money going away. We can keep it in the family. Of course, if you want to shilly-shally around awhile—"

"I don't," said Morgan hoarsely.

He got to his feet swiftly, reached down and, catching her hand, drew her to her feet. He was still holding her hand when the sharp, spiteful crack of a gun split the night air.

Bull Dogs, Yell Leaders Oppose Tourney Booring

Stone, Hassett
Question Marks
For Local Squad

Team members and yell leaders at Harrisburg Township high school this week launched a campaign against booring by local fans at the Norris City regional basketball tournament which starts tonight with Carrier Mills-Shawneetown and Eldorado-Ridgeway games.

It will be Norris City-Equality and McLeansboro-Harrisburg tomorrow night and tomorrow morning at a pep meeting at Harrisburg Township high school Principal Ellis F. Henson will give a talk against booring.

Booring has been pronounced only the last couple of games, and the team and yell leaders want to nip it before it gets out of hand.

"Neither the team members nor the yell leaders appreciate this booring, and urge local fans not to participate in it," Mrs. Pearl Parkhurst, sponsor of the yell leaders at HTHS, stated. "During the game, the yell leaders will do what they can to stop it—if it starts. And the team members certainly realize how unsportsmanlike booring can be."

The Bull Dogs will go into their game with McLeansboro at 8:30 tomorrow with two question marks. Latest is Wayne Stone, who suffered a slipped disk in his back and the past two or three days has not been able to bend over. Stone at 6-2 1/2 is by far the tallest boy on the starting five.

Ray Hassett was the first injury, spraining an ankle in the last game of the season. Right now Hassett is getting along on the lame ankle but it is not known how it will hold up in a game.

Stone is taking treatment in an effort to get his back in shape by tomorrow night.

Spartans Lose to Michigan, Indiana Whips Illinois to Tie for Big 10 Championship

CHICAGO (AP)—Michigan State and Indiana reigned as co-champions today in the wake of the closest Big Ten basketball race in 31 years.

The race lived up to its advance billing as a tight contest and left six of the 10 contenders locked in final ties. Another tie could develop between Northwestern and Wisconsin at the bottom of the ladder if the Badgers lose their remaining game to Iowa next Saturday in the league's remaining game.

Michigan State, losing 81-72 to Michigan Monday night, and the Hoosiers trimming Illinois, 84-76, concluded their campaigns with identical 10-4 records.

Minnesota beat Ohio State, 76-69, leaving each with 9 wins and 5 losses in a tie for third place. Purdue closed its season with a 72-63 triumph over Iowa. It was the Boilermakers' eighth win in 14 games and matched Michigan's record to tie for fifth place.

Illinois, the experts pre-season choice to take it all, wound up a poor seventh with a 7-7 effort for the campaign and Iowa, Wisconsin and Northwestern brought up the rear.

The Spartans, heading into Monday night's contest with 10 straight conference victories and sole possession of the lead, bowed to the Wolverines for the second time this season. The setback, however, still left the Spartans holding on to the NCAA's bid for the conference representative in the Lexington, Ky., playoff.

Archie Dees Scores 25

The title-hungry Spartans never had a chance against a Michigan team that could do no wrong. The Wolverines jumped to an early lead and walked off at the half with a wide 52-34 advantage.

Big Ron Kramer sparked the winning attack with 21 points and sophomore George Lee poured in 17.

Archie Dees, the Big Ten's leading scorer with a season average of 25.4 points per game, bagged 25 points to lead Indiana to its 84-76 win over the Illini.

Teammate Dick Neal would up his collegiate cage career by setting a new conference season record for field goal accuracy with 84 buckets in 164 attempts. His

Game of Week

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Broadcasting Co. has been awarded the rights to carry the NCAA college football "game of the week" series again this year, it was announced today.

The 1957 TV plan approved by the NCAA is basically the same as that in effect the last two years. It provides for nationwide telecasts of single games on eight Saturdays plus three games on Thanksgiving Day on a split network basis.

Regional games will be telecast on four other Saturdays during the 1957 season. Rights for these games will be handled by the individual colleges and conferences subject to NCAA approval.

NBC, which has carried the NCAA approved games during six of the last seven seasons, said the 1957 schedule of TV games will be announced soon.

The first successful incandescent lamp was tested on Oct. 21, 1879.

Wide Variety of Ideas

Moral Training One of Most Urgent Problems, High School Principals Say

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP)—High school principals in all parts of the nation regard the moral training of teen-age youths as one of their most urgent problems, a United Press poll disclosed today.

But principals who participated in the poll had a wide variety of ideas on how ethical and spiritual values can be taught effectively in public schools.

They were sharply divided on what role religion should play. Some strongly favored non-sectarian religious observances and objective teaching about religion as part of the school program. Others contended that religion must be excluded entirely from public school efforts to develop high moral character in students.

The poll was conducted among 40 principals selected at random among delegates to this week's annual convention of the National Association of Secondary School Principals. Every section of the nation was represented among the respondents.

The first question was whether public high schools should make a "special effort" to teach moral and spiritual values.

Twenty-six principals rated this task "imperative." Thirteen chose the term, "desirable." Only one said it is "unnecessary."

Each principal was then asked to outline briefly what his school is now doing in this field.

Four replied that no particular effort is being made. The other 36 principals reported a wide variety of programs.

Religious observances of some type were listed by 13 principals as an integral part of the moral guidance activities of their schools. Morning devotionals, featuring Bible reading and prayer, were the most common pattern. One school broadcasts a daily five-minute inspirational program over its loud-speaker system to each classroom. Another brings in local ministers to address student assemblies. Five schools reported content courses in comparative religion or in church history.

Another widespread approach is to reach moral values in the context of regular curriculum courses, especially history, literature, social studies and psychology. About half of the principals listed this as their most effective device.

Teacher's Good Example

Eleven principals said they got their best results by working through student organizations. For example, in several schools, student councils have drawn up "codes" of ethical behavior for students. Others feature student-led discussions of moral problems in assemblies, in High-Y clubs or similar activities.

The "example" set by a good teacher in her own daily life was mentioned by five principals as a major source of moral guidance for students. In several schools, this example is reinforced by direct counseling sessions in which teachers seek to help youths who seem to be in particular need of it.

The question which evoked the widest range of views and the sharpest comments was: "What part, if any, should non-sectarian teaching about religion play in a public school program of moral and ethical concepts?"

Insofar as the individual replies could be categorized, 8 principals assigned an important role to religious teaching, 10 a small to moderate role, 6 ruled it out altogether, and the remaining 16 either declined to answer or lined up with the principal who confessed "I honestly don't know."
